

Using counselling skills in educational settings

A practical one day course for practitioners who would like to learn how to use counselling skills in educational settings.

The course aims to support practitioners:

- Further develop their expertise in helping children and young people with a range of social, emotional and behavioural needs
- Identify appropriate approaches for using basic counselling skills in schools
- To develop a range of practical skills directly transferable to educational settings.

When?

Friday 22 March / Friday 26 April / Friday 24 May 2013
10am – 4pm

Who should attend?

This course is for practitioners who support vulnerable children and young people in educational settings of any phase or size including teachers, TAs, SENCos, and anyone with a pastoral role.

How should I book?

This one day course costs £150 per person including lunch and course materials. For further information and to book your place go to:
bristol.ac.uk/education/expertiseandresources/cpd

To contact us email:

ed-cpd@bristol.ac.uk

Graduate School of Education,
University of Bristol, 35 Berkeley Square,
Bristol BS8 1JA

bristol.ac.uk/education

University of BRISTOL