You are cordially invited to the first event funded through the new BAICE Thematic Forum initiative.

This workshop is part of a series of events where participants will be encouraged to explore the methodological issues which surround the growing complexity of ‘insiderness’ and ‘outsiderness’ in international and comparative research.

Participants will be encouraged to work together to develop analytical frameworks to represent dimensions such as culture, language and cross-cultural communication, gender, ethnicity, ethics and contextual sensitivity.

Outcomes for the day will include the identification of collaborative writing possibilities, contributions to the next BAICE conference at the University of Cambridge in September 2012, and a collected publication.

The workshop is free to BAICE members.

Registration: please email your name, research area and a short paragraph on the relevance of the insider/outsider debate to your own research to insideroutsider@baice.ac.uk. Closing date for registration is 1st February, but attendance is restricted to 40 participants so please register early to be guaranteed a place. There may be a small amount of money available to subsidize travel for anyone who feels that financial constraint may limit their ability to come to the workshop. Please make this known at registration.

To join BAICE: please visit www.baice.ac.uk/joining-baice for joining details and the benefits of being a BAICE member. It will be possible to join on the day but please make it clear that you intend to do this in your registration email.

In association with the Research Centre for International and Comparative Studies, University of Bristol & the Open University