Workplace Health

The Occupational Health Service is an independent service that sits within Safety and Health Services. We work closely with teams in Human Resources, Staff Counselling Service, Physiotherapy within Sport, Exercise and Health, as well as specific student faculties.

What is it?
Occupational Health seeks to promote and maintain the health and wellbeing of individuals in the workplace or specific study environments. We aim to ensure a positive relationship between an individual’s work or studies and health.

Our team
Occupational Health is staffed by the Occupational Health Manager, supported by two Occupational Health Advisors, an Occupational Health Technician and Administrative support. Additional clinical support is provided by an outsourced Occupational Health Physician.

Our services
- Referrals from line managers, faculty or HR for individuals whose health is impacting their work or studies.
- Fitness for work assessments including pre-employment and night work.
- Health surveillance programmes relating to respiration, noise, hand arm vibration and skin.
- Inclusion in vaccination programmes.

Confidentiality
Occupational Health is a confidential service offering impartial advice. Management/Faculty information is only given relating to your fitness to work or study and is only released with your written consent. Your Health records are stored securely and are only accessed by the Occupational Health team.
