

Journalism

Ian Morris

Editor at the Hereford Times

Ian is an experienced journalist who has worked within the regional press for 15 years. The changing nature of the media world has meant that he has never sat still and have continually adapted and acquired new skills while working to hit deadlines in a high-pressure environment.

Michael Pereira

The Guardian

Michael is currently an editorial assistant at The Guardian, which consists of several different roles in one: looking after the administration for several different desks (design, graphics, visuals, guide, guide production), having some involvement with the newspaper's project to go into tabloid format, and a special responsibility over the political cartoonists and editorial illustration.

Sarah Lockett

TV News Presenter and Journalist

Sarah is a highly versatile news anchor and broadcast journalist, and has presented many news, business, factual and news-magazine programmes. She has presented on Sky News, BBC News Channel, BBC London and others; plus reported for Channel Four News, 5 News, Reuters Business TV and more. She presents The Business Debate, as well as working for ITN Industry News, plus anchored The Business Channel and The Local Government Channel for several years.