Eliz Boga

Social Policy (BSc)

I've been working with Centrepoint for over a month now and I am already able to notice a development in my skills!

When I started my internship they worked with me to establish what skills I wanted to develop and they have tailored the experience around these goals. I wanted to improve my data handling and analysis skills and Dan and the team have taught me important skills I will be able to use for the rest of my career.

I have also been given my own section in their final report on youth homelessness – which will enable me to work independently and utilise the skills that I have been learning within this internship. I am excited to use my initiative to formulate my area of the report, as I will be able to see how far my skills have progressed and produce something for the organisation with minimal supervision. This has really helped me feel like I have a responsibility and an impact within the organisation.

The entire team have been so lovely – we meet every week for a catch-up to go over what we are working on, which is a great addition as we are all remote and working from home. It enables us to have a chance to communicate as an entire team as we would if we were in an office together. Everyone involved is engaging, informative, and so, so friendly!

“It is lovely to have a supervisor that cares about my own freedom within my workplace and makes sure that I am comfortable and enjoying what I am doing.”
