

Making Research Work for Everyone

Our commitment to involving patients and the public

We want everyone to feel welcome and included in our research. We will work with patients and the public to make sure our research focuses on what really matters to different people and communities, so it can make a real difference to peoples lives.

Inclusive Opportunities

Involve the public in our research in meaningful and inclusive ways.

Positive Experiences

Build confidence and skills in public involvement, so that everyone has a positive experience.

Share Learning

Keep track of our public involvement work, share learning, and celebrate the difference it makes to our research.

Move Forward

Make sure we have the people, funding, and other resources we need to keep this work going.

Learn more about public involvement at the Centre for Academic Primary Care at: <https://www.bristol.ac.uk/primaryhealthcare/involvement/>