

REPROVIDE

STUDY OF A DOMESTIC ABUSE PERPETRATOR PROGRAMME (DAPP): SUMMARY FOR REFERRERS

WHAT IS REPROVIDE?

REPROVIDE IS A STUDY OF A DAPP

REPROVIDE is an NIHR-funded study of a Domestic Abuse Perpetrator Programme (DAPP) based at the University of Bristol. It aims to find out if a 23-week group DAPP is an effective way to help men change their behaviour, and improve safety of victims of domestic abuse.

WHO CAN TAKE PART?

ANY MAN CAN TAKE PART IF THEY...

- ...are concerned about their behaviour towards a female (ex)partner
- ...are aged 21 and over
- ...live in Bath and North East Somerset, Bristol, Gwent, North Somerset, Somerset, South Gloucestershire or Wiltshire.

WHY DO WE NEED A STUDY?

TO PREVENT MORE VICTIMS

Robust research is needed into perpetrator programmes to prevent domestic abuse. Despite some positive findings in recent evaluations, there is still debate about the effectiveness of DAPPs.

HOW DO I REFER?

REFERRING IS EASY

If you have consent from a potential male participant, simply send his name and contact details to reprovide-men@bristol.ac.uk. You can also call us on 07870376548 or 07976225462. Men are welcome to self-refer.

WHO'S BEHIND THE STUDY?

SPECIALIST DOMESTIC ABUSE SERVICES AND RESEARCHERS

The DAPP group programme has been designed in partnership with Respect. The men's DAPP group and women's support are being run by our partners at Barnardo's, Phoenix DAS, Nextlink, and Splitz.

REPROVIDE University of Bristol team is based in the Centre for Academic Primary Care. We are working with partners at Barnardo's, Nextlink, Phoenix Domestic Abuse Services, Respect, and Splitz to deliver this study.

REPROVIDE is funded by National Institute of Health Research.

www.bristol.ac.uk/group-intervention-for-men

