

Undergraduate study

School of Education

Key highlights

A global classroom

Study education from global, international and comparative perspectives.

Real-life experiences

We encourage hands-on research and investigations in schools, charities and more.

Professional goals

Your personal tutor will work with you to identify your career objectives, and you will benefit from specialist support in all three years of your course.

Become an expert

Our BSc Psychology in Education degree is recognised by the British Psychological Society (BPS).

Why study in the School of Education?

To think creatively about how education can promote justice and positive social change, join us in vibrant Bristol. You will learn from and with inspiring researchers and committed teachers, enjoying access to career-enhancing networks and our renowned Research Centres.

You will explore education in diverse settings and investigate how learning happens for children, young people, adults and in communities. You will develop a broad range of research skills that will equip you to tackle complex problems in novel ways. You will apply your learning in practice, spending time in a school, community organisation, or other education setting.

BSc Education Studies

This interdisciplinary degree combines sociology, psychology, cultural theory, economics and the learning sciences to tackle the big questions affecting schools, cultural spaces and online communities today. It is a degree that opens doors to careers that make a positive difference.

The first year will introduce you to core concepts and theoretical perspectives. You will learn how research methods can be used to answer educational questions, with opportunities to apply these insights. You may also choose from optional units within the school or elsewhere in the University.

Find out more

Entry requirements, course structure and units
bristol.ac.uk/ug2021-education

In your second year you will explore the diversity of education in Bristol and design and conduct a small-scale research study. You will also explore policy change in education. As you start to develop your interests and expertise, you will also be able to take further optional units.

In year three, you will continue to develop your interests through optional units and showcase your expertise in a dissertation on a topic that fascinates you.

BSc Psychology in Education

This applied psychology degree helps you understand how to use psychology in educational contexts. Students learn to apply psychological theory and research in real-life educational settings involving children, adolescents and adults. The BPS accreditation will enable you to progress to professional training as a psychologist.

Your first-year core units will introduce you to key concepts and ways of thinking about psychology in education. You may also choose from optional units within the school or elsewhere in the University.

In your second year, core units will examine key areas in psychology and how they can be applied in education. You will also develop your research skills carrying out small-scale projects. You will also choose from optional units as you develop your interests.

In your third year, you will take further optional units and showcase your expertise in a dissertation, allowing you to apply your research skills.

'The thing I have enjoyed the most is the way in which the faculty has listened to the voice of the students and adapted the course to fit students' best interests.'

Lucy (BSc Psychology in Education)

The School of Education, based at Berkeley Square, is home to a vibrant, diverse and welcoming body of students and staff.

You can choose to take a four-year Study Abroad degree, with a year studying in English at one of our prestigious partner universities overseas. Partner locations include: Australia, Hong Kong and the US.

The school's mission is to develop learning and leadership for a changing world.

Courses

BSc Education Studies

BSc Education Studies with Study Abroad

BSc Psychology in Education

BSc Psychology in Education with Study Abroad

Connect with the School of Education

 SOEBristol

 SoEBristolUoB

 SoEBristol

Photography

Dan Rowley

© University of Bristol

This leaflet contains information for students planning to start university in autumn 2021. We have made every effort to ensure all details are correct at the time of going to press (May 2020). However, since this information is subject to change, you are advised to check the University's website, bristol.ac.uk/ug-study for the latest updates. Any sample units listed are indicative and offerings may change due to developments in the relevant academic field. Unit availability varies depending on staffing, student choice and timetabling constraints.

